

TransAccess Cloud Document Management System PSL Puts An End To Your Daily Paper Chase!

Clear off your desk and empty out the file room, while still gaining instant access to information, no matter its source, nature or location. Find exactly the document you need, when you need it, with a mouse-click: that’s the power of document management with PSL and our own TransAccess DM suite, the only commercial application interfaced to NARA’s Archive Records Center Information System (ARCIS). Studies show that document mismanagement (like the 25% of enterprise records that are misplaced and never located) cost up to 60% of workers’ time and 15% of corporate revenue. PSL pushes back against the rising tide of paper documents, converting millions of pages of records to digital format, all thoroughly and accurately indexed, so that they don’t require manual searches or risk non-compliance with record-keeping mandates. The benefits are bountiful: greater efficiency, easier compliance, and lower storage and management costs.

Of course, the real goal isn’t to chase away the paper per se; that’s the means to an end. It’s about making daily operations measurably smoother and faster while still complying with operational mandates and compliance requirements. With PSL, it comes with total customization, no software installation, and documents delivered instantly and seamlessly through the web browser your users already know and use. Efficiency has never been so effective.

PSL designs governance programs to reflect the realities of today's environment, in which technology, regulatory oversight and operational mandates are changing at an accelerating pace. Success is measured in more than savings: it's making day-to-day work productive again.

PSL professionals are technology experts who earn trust and accolades by delivering measurable, tangible results. We take the bite out of even the most perplexing operational and technological problems with improved workflows, tools and systems that just work, intuitively and invisibly, to make day-to-day operations easy, breezy and stress-free. In other words, when you've got too many papers on your desk, too many obligations on your plate, and too many problems on your mind, PSL pinpoints the pain and eradicates it with surgical precision. Let us help you get it done!
